Inebriety, Social Integration and Marriage

By SELDEN D. BACON, PH.D.

A sociological study of over 1,200 men and women who were arrested for drunkenness in Connecticut cities.

Analyzes the marital status, occupational status and stability, recreational activities, educational experience, residential mobility and age distribution of this large sample and compares them with two control groups —the general population and a group of persons arrested for other offenses.

Particular attention is given in the discussion to the significance of the marital association and of social integration in general, and to the applicability of the marital data to the study of the etiology and treatment of alcoholism.
